Unplugged

Belvedere

I wake up in sweat,
My dreams collapsed like boxes
Painfully the light opens my eyes
I'm finding it strange
To hope for a few more hours
Knowing that it'll only drag me down

Cause I'm safe in my Subconscious splendor A home in this menagerie Here no questions left to answer No disappointments to relive

Please turn out the light I'll turn out my mind Just sit in the dark And wait for my time

Clock radio stop, your lying Your digits won't convince me now All you're proving is that I'm lazy Or maybe better off alone

I woke up soaked cold
To this condition
Drenched myself into submission
I woke up soaked cold
To this condition
