Rivers in Your Mouth

Ben Howard

Hold it in, the river in your mouth is pouring out Water takes the shape of all that it surrounds Yeah I know, I've been trying too hard To keep in time with all of the hours in your day

Hold it in, they wouldn't let you out among the crowd Not like that, these streets will tear you down How it is, under my skin Now you are pictures of all you'll ever be

I am not myself today I am not feeling ok

Hold it in, the river in your mouth is pouring out Water takes the shape of all that it surrounds Yeah I know, I've been trying so hard To keep it in time with all of the sounds that you make

Hold it in, they come at you from both sides of your mind Thick and thin, these walls you'll always stand behind I'm sick and tired, oh I begged for the world to change But it don't, it ain't all you and that's the thing

I am not myself today I am not feeling ok

And you showed me hope amongst the hellequins in spring And you told me life was learning how to be your friend
