

Life in Velvet

Between the Buried and Me

Fresh air grips me
Rolling hills on far
The smell of the living. Awakens all I am

Lift my limbs to focus
Beauty is in sight
The hours I cherished are now false

My last exhale is purple smoke
Knees crash down on velvet robes

Dark worlds engrossing
Our sun is sleeping