

Hummingbird

Beware of Darkness

Outside my window a little hummingbird flies.
That's how I know your spirit's alive,
But as I approach you, you fly away.
I'm not a big mean blackbird like you say.

Take me down
To where I've been.
I will fly into the night.
We will find, we'll find our love again.

Outside my window a little hummingbird cries.
The sky turns dark, the raindrops fly.
I call out to you and hear my voice echo back in return,
In search of truth I quickly find concern.

Take me down
To where I've been.
I will fly into the night.
We will find, we'll find our love again.

Outside my window a little hummingbird dies.
I hold your body, the tears drop from my eyes.
Oh, where could you be, oh, where could you be my love?
I'm growing up so lonely each and every day.

Take me down
To where I've been.
I will fly into the night.
We will find, we'll find our love again.
Oh, we'll find our love again...
Find our love again...

Don't call me blackbird, don't call me blackbird, my love.
Don't call me blackbird, don't call me blackbird.
You're breaking, you, you're breaking my heart.
