Let's discuss this little vice And the shortcoming's of men and mice The judge and jury all in one You passed a song that's left unsung Have you heard let sleeping dogs lie? Sometimes it's futile to even try So when you're out late on your walk You must remember our little talk Can't straddle your thin white line Forcing me to do my time Hey man when you up for parole? I'm afraid not every ??? three year's ago Well I'm bustin out right here and now And the first one down is your sacred cow Can't straddle your thin white line Forcing me to do my time White line, thin white line, thin white Now words creep when time's hand's tied They broke the noose clean nearly cried And so it's true the good die young And we sing these songs left unsung Can't straddle your thin white line Forcing me to do my time White line, thin white line, thin white
