

Forever Ride

Bill Miller

Out beyond the broken billboards and the signs along the road
There's a trail your heart must follow no one but you could ever know

Where the winds and the coyote sing a song you've never heard
From a place that's long forgotten but you'll remember every word

[CHORUS:]

In a world that's always changing find the things that stay the same

Like the moon and stars that guide you out across the sweeping plain

Keep your eye on the horizon when you cross that great divide
All you have is what's inside you when you take that lonesome ride

Forever ride, forever ride, forever ride?

So go to sleep now little brother, dream of red tails in the west

I know until you find your way there, your crazy soul will never rest

We'll chase the horses in the springtime, when the desert flowers bloom

You may never hear my footstep, but I will always be with you

[REPEAT CHORUS]
