She will

Billy Squier

Men who can't love are so predictable Break your heart like they cross the street Show you their wounds and make you vulnerable Make you feel they really need you Men who can't love will win you over Casanova, he had a plan Run you round, then he run you over Run you out, maybe come back again He will lead you to the higher ground Tell you secrets that will make you whole Leave an address where he can't be found And a promise that will leave you cold But he will feed you if you come around Men who can't love will leave you lonely Grow so distant, and be downright mean And if you ask him, "Can we talk about it?" He will answer, "Let's not make a scene" Men who can't love hate to admit it Make you wonder if it's all your fault Women who fall have got their reasons Make you guilty cause they love too much If you tell him you could fall for him He will say he doesn't want you to And if you tell him you don't wanna go with him He will make you feel it's somethin' you should do He will make it so you just can't win He will call you when you're almost home Drag his voice across your mainline Tell you everything'll be different Just when you thought you had an answer Women who love, you best be careful Hide your purpose with your charity Women who love - they make me nervous Stay away, child, don't you mess with me He will leave you out in "Nowhereland" Searchin' for a man you never knew You're a stranger in a foreign land And there's nothin' that a girl can do He will lead you out to "No Man's Land" Start a fire that you can't control Lay a minefield of impossible demands Cross a border that you can't patrol And tell you everything is in your hands
