

Hymn

Birdeatsbaby

I danced at your wedding For the bride and the groom I danced through the shadows And I danced in that room

And I gave up salvation Just to dance at your death I waited there and I held my breath

I danced on the pavements But I stepped on the cracks It hard to dance with the devil on your back And I looked up to heaven But the angels replied: "You will dance till the day you die"

But don't be afraid my dear Close your eyes and dry your tears I will not forget you and I will not lie I will dance till the day I die

I danced over water But I drowned in the sea Devils swam all over me

And I fell through the darkness Right to the deeps Swallowed whole while the angels weep

But don't be afraid my dear Close your eyes and dry your tears I will not forget you and I will not lie I will dance till the day I die

I will not forget you and I will not lie I will dance till the day I die
