

Lullaby

Birdeatsbaby

Goodbye, my love
You're leaving me
Like the sound of fallen tears
Goodbye, my love's deceiving me
Even after all these years

I see an empty room
I see a hollow tomb
Where death is calling, in comfort, my name
And though I used to love
The pain is twice as much
And I will seek you no more in vain

Goodbye, my love
So tenderly I will watch you fade to black
Goodbye, my love
So bitterly
You are never coming back

I see an empty room
I see a hollow tomb
Where death is calling, in comfort, my name
And though I used to love
The pain is twice as much
And I will seek you no more in vain

Goodbye, my love
The death of me
Will not make you change your mind
Goodbye, my love
With sympathy and with scorn, you leave behind

I see an empty room
I see a hollow tomb
Where death is calling, in comfort, my name
And though I used to love
The pain is twice as much
And I will seek you no more in vain
