Promise

Black Rebel Motorcycle Club

Son I see it in your eyes There is a burden you cannot hide But in their arms you feel so alive And in a moment you're cast aside

All lines have broken and we need you to hold on Your eyes have opened but you've got to go on I will comfort you I will stay with you It's a promise not forgotten

Now I hear you in my mind There is a story you bring to life And I will bow gently by your feet But tread softly you tread on my dreams

You're crying all these tears but they mean to leave you dry Still fighting all these years about the same old things We wished we never had

The vision softly fades But there's a light that still remains And in these walls I feel your sadness wane But in a moment you'll feel no pain

All lines have broken but we need you to hold on Your eyes have opened, but you've got to go on I will comfort you I will sing to you It's a promise not forgotten

Come on baby let's light the sun rise Come on baby let's light the night