

Private Life

Blackfoot

Now everywhere you look, you see her face,
Television, magazines, all over the place.
With cover girl eyes and skin you love to touch,
Living in the limelight, always in a rush.
When the lights are out and the cameras are gone,
Down comes the shades, she wants to be alone.

You know that girl loves her private life.
You know that girl loves her private life.

No one ever knows life behind the scene,
Getting past the glamour, the sparkle and the sheen.
Back into the shadows, is where she wants to be,
Discretion is her answer, she needs her privacy.
Looking in the mirror, off the makeup comes,
Secretly slipping off, in the night she runs

You know that girl loves her private life.
You know that girl loves her private life.
Cause she's a girl she has her pride, don't need no man to her inside.

You know that girl loves her private life.
You know that girl loves her private life.
You know that girl loves her private life.
You know that girl loves her private life.
