

Arm Yourself

Blackguard

So arm yourself when it's time to fight for what you think is right

Your wits won't dodge all the hits

The strength you possess won't always stand the test

Everyone has fallen to their knees

So now while you can put on the full armor and take your stand

So when your enemy is near you won't be overcome

With fear their attacks come swift so take your hits but you'll stand once more

Don't let adversity and pain bring you down

At all times be ready be brave

Friend or foe no one know until it's too late

Then you feel the knife is sliding deeper in your back

This world is a battle ground

And their legions come to tear what we built down

With lies they'll try and some will fall

But all should heed this call

For those who destroy you will fall

This world is a battle ground

And their legions come to tear what we built down

With lies they'll try and some will fall

But all should heed this call

For those who destroy you will fall

You'll fall, you'll fall one day

For all the times that you preyed on the weak and the poor

It will add another chain

So arm yourself for all time with truth and wisdom by your side

Honor those who honor you in return