

Every Once In A While

BlackHawk

When the moon is bright on a Saturday night,
there's a thousand stars in the sky.
On a winding road her memory flows.
She'll face the fact she wants to go back.

She opens her heart to an old memory.
She closes her eyes and she smiles.
Just ask her if she ever still thinks about me.
She'll say, "Ev'ry once in a while, ev'ry once in a while."

She tries to forget, but she hasn't yet,
not a single day goes by.
That feelin' again reminds her
of when I held her tight.
It felt so right.

She opens her heart to an old memory.
She closes her eyes and she smiles.
Just ask her if she ever still thinks about me.
She'll say, "Ev'ry once in a while, ev'ry once in a while."

And ev'ry once in a while she calls my name out loud.
And when she thinks about us,
she'll face the fact she wants to go back.

She opens her heart to an old memory.
She closes her eyes and she smiles.
Just ask her if she ever still thinks about me.
She'll say, "Ev'ry once in a while, ev'ry once in a while,
ev'ry once in a while, ev'ry once in a while."