Blacklisted

In this world I owe nothing to no one
Live by the days or however your money's spent
Talent's such a common thing
But I haven't seemed to find mine yet
I've ridden my insecurities
All the way to a place called destiny
I'm not looking for an apology
I've realized no one feels a bit like me
So don't you say, 'I told you so'
I'm not a fool, I just know what I know
I've crawled on my hands and my knees
To find a place that fits me
I've been ashamed, I've failed, felt pathetic
It should have broke me, but I wouldn't let it
Don't let anyone tell you:
It's not where you're from, it's (where you're at)
I've spent my life escaping and I always wind up (coming back)
I've spent my whole life searching to find everything is fake
Gotta say that I'm not sorry, not sorry that I can't relate
