

Watching the Night Sky

Blaze Bayley

I only regret chances I did not take*
And decisions that I waited too long to make
There comes a time when you just realise
Who and what really matters to you in this life
Always connected but so far away
The suffering and passion that we have each day
Feeling the pain of the absence of you
Each night we look up at the same sky
Watching the night sky

However far I am away from you now
I swear that there is nothing that I won't get through Stars in the night sky can guide us both home

To our hope and our truth and to where we belong
Always connected but so far away
The suffering and passion that we have each day
Feeling the pain of the absence of you
Each night we look up at the same sky
Watching the night sky

Always connected but so far away
The suffering and passion that we have each day
Feeling the pain of the absence of you
Each night we look up at the same sky
Watching the night sky