A Dark Passage

Blind Guardian

I feel cold Facing the darkness The light's gone away Deep in his castle he said All land'll be mine There's one thing for sure The triumph of shadow is near Deep in his castle they sang We shall not rest Until all will be thyne All land is mine You can be sure Don't dare me the mighty one screamed Smashed down the light I will not rest till I'm king Valinor's empty now allied the elves and men they shall be damned Rise of Fall a dark tale ends Just wondering how in the darkness they found their way to the right place children of the sun second kindred we call their race treat them kindly born in the east (are the) nightfearer they moved westwards towards the sunshine (they are) morning breath like short's their life (like) dawn passes by when the day comes the field was lost (and) hope had passed away the sun went down beyond the sea dark was the hour but day shall come again Smashed down the light I will not rest till I'm king

I will not rest till I'm kind Valinor's empty now allied the elves and men they shall be damned

Clean my wounds wash away all fear let courage be mine No song no tale which contains all the grief (but) renowned the deeds and the victims of defeat

Sit down on your chair and look out for your kin with my eyes you'll see and with my ears you'll hear you troubled my day and you've questioned my strength (but) don't mess with the master of fate

Smashed down the light I will not rest till I'm king Valinor's empty now allied the elves and men they shall be damned

I smashed down the light and dared Valinor I smashed down the light revenge will be mine

Slowly marching on still we're marching on
