

as i stand here watching your worn-out shell you used it well i can feel it in the atmosphere somehow i want to see with your eyes right now i know you've never been this close before you've been feeling homesick for a while this is the moment you've been longing for the gate is slowly opening more and more and i'm already missing you i always thought the wall between the world was bigger

and i'm already missing you all the doubt is out of the room this longing for is going to be here real soon i know you're fed up struggling with your flesh and bones to wear yourself nowadays like carrying a heavy stone you know i've never been this close before you've been feeling homesick for a while

this is the moment you've been longing for

(chorus)

what do you have to fear (6x) you don't even have to fear