

The older I get the less things I'm in love with,
But you caught me at the right time.
I'm amazed by the way that you constantly change,
You're the culprit to all of my crimes.

So just take a second and look at my face,
Do you honestly think any time could erase,
How I feel when it's you,
Who walks in through the door.

I'm a chameleon and you are the sea,
We're always changing, never happy.
I'm a chameleon, you're colouring me,
I can be everything you want me to be.

Just not me.

The older I get the less things I'm in love with,
But you caught me at the right time.
I'm amazed by the way that you constantly change,
You're the culprit to all of my crimes.

So just take a second and look at my face,
Do you honestly think any time could erase,
How I feel when it's you,
Who walks in through the door.

I've got an achey-breaky feeling,
That all my obstacles are leaving.
And now I'm starting to believe in a love,
That I'm not afraid of.

I'm a chameleon and you are the sea,
We're always changing, never happy.
I'm a chameleon, you're colouring me,
I can be everything you want me to be.

Just not me.

(Instrumental)

I'm a chameleon and you are the sea,
We're always changing, never happy.
I'm a chameleon, you're colouring me,
I can be everything you want me to be.

Just not me.

I'm a chameleon and you are the sea,
We're always changing, never happy.
I'm just a broken boy and you're healing me,
I never thought the chameleon could fall for the sea.