Blonde Redhead

My notebook says I can't take it anymore The dancer says he is the one to share my bed I only know when I look at you Aren't many men I feel I love I don't mean to flatter you My sister says no more calling you It's out of my hand no more missing you I only know when I look at you Aren't many men I feel I love I don't mean to flatter you I don't care for making more I just want the glazing eyes I want us to share the wine Let us share our blood and hearts Let us share our blood and hearts

I stole your golden key Tiptoed around and closed the door I only want the love Could give me back my modesty I only know when I look at you There isn't much I feel I need I don't mean to flatter you I don't care for having more I just want the glazing eyes I want us to share the wine Let us share our blood and hearts I just want the glazing eyes Let us share our blood and hearts Let us share our blood and hearts
