

She Tries

Blutengel

She's walking through the streets at night
And she's wandering if her life will ever change
She feels so restless and she feels the fear inside
And she's asking herself if she will be strong enough to resist

Never feel lonely and never feel sad
Never wake up crying from her sleep

She tries to feel her freedom and the beauty of the night
She tries to break the chains and to realize that she only got
this life

She's waiting much too long for a sign She's tired and helpless and she's too weak to carry on
She knows there's someone waiting on the other side
She smiles and she closes her eyes and goes deeper into the night

She tries to feel her freedom and the beauty of the night
She tries to break the chains and to realize that she only got
this life

Never feel lonely and never feel sad
Never wake up crying from her sleep

She tries to feel her freedom and the beauty of the night
She tries to break the chains and to realize that she only got
this life
