

The Girl Who Stood Beside Me

Bobby Darin

Whose face did I see beside me
When I looked into the mirror, yesterday?
Who has tried to keep my spirits
Oh, so high through yesterday?

Who now shares my life and tears
Whenever I cry?
Who becomes my wife
And fears the day I die?
Who knows all my thoughts
And every word I say?

She's the girl who stood beside me
As I looked into the mirror, yesterday.

Who then gave a hand to me
When I was tremblin' in the dark, just yesterday?
Who then showed me all the nights and all the sights
And all the lights, just yesterday?

Who now shares my time
And who now makes my bed?
Who now lies beside me?
Who now holds my head?
Who knows all my thoughts
And every word I say?

She's the girl who stood beside me
As I looked into the mirror, yesterday.

Whose voice did I hear when bells were ringin'
Silent bird that started singin' yesterday?
Who then said, "Come sit beside me
Oh, my darlin, don't deny me," yesterday?

Who now shares my time
And who now makes my bed?
Who now lies beside me
When I hold my head?
Who knows all my thoughts
And every word I say?

She's the girl who stood beside me
As I looked into the mirror, yesterday.

Yes, the girl who stood beside me
As I looked into the mirror, yesterday
