Feels Like Comin' Home

I tried to forget you I tried to make it on my own I tried to deny you but something keeps me hangin' on and though I've lost my way you believed in me It feels like comin' home again It feels like comin' home again like mother and father your love is unconditional the way you forgive me somehow it's so sensational and you'll be there for me whereever I may roam It feels like comin' home again It feels like comin' home again I know for sure that you'll never let me down someday, somewhere you will always be around sometimes when I'm desperate and I feel so dammned alone your arms are wide open and it feels like comin' home I know you'll wait for me until the end of time It feels like comin' home again It feels like comin' home again