

From the Ashes

Borealis

My eyes are closed but I lie awake and alone My heart is frozen and my soul has abandoned me

I battle through these days, through these days so grey, but I see no light beyond This world brought me to my knees, and my will to be is gone

I would walk through the storm,
just to hear your voice again
This storm will never end
I would give my life to see your smile
From the ashes the curse begins to rise

Remember me for who I was,
and remember the life we had The fault lies not in her;
I beg you see her worth

Wrote yourself a tragic end, and a new life was born Try and take the life I love, nothing of you I can see in her eyes

I would walk through the storm,
just to hear your voice again
This storm will never end
I would give my life to see your smile
From the ashes the curse begins to rise

I feel the pain, never be the same Nowhere to go and no one to blame Can't take the pain, wish you would stay Rise from the ashes

I would walk through the storm,
just to hear your voice again
This storm will never end
I would give my life to see your smile
From the ashes the curse begins to rise

I can't stay here on my own Not with her
I will forever pray to trade her life
For yours
