and I need to take a step back I need to face the facts That I'm intoxicated but now I need to take a step back Save your sanity you will be facing honesty and I said I'd never leave I need to take a step back

In this chase My optimistic agenda's unchanged Whats at stake A separation that leaves me unscathed In this phase I am standing and you're drifting away Now you're facing a chance to prevail among the wrathful

Your silence has awakened my abilities it's taking over Take this message as a gift from me you need to listen to your heart can you tell what it says we got the plan here deconstruct, construct a new life and never push aside your instincts stay alive

this is endless power coursing through our veins triumphant in this hour you will never look at us the same
