

And in other news, the crew of the USS Gloria has at last completed their survey of the planet Saturn and its moons. The crew has been on their mission for almost 5 years now, and they'll begin their return sometime later this week. Personnel at the Kennedy Space Center are eagerly anticipating the end of the trip and expect the return of the astronauts to be sometime next year.