

Your Hiding All The Right Things

Breathe Electric

So turn yourself around,
I know just what you're thinking,
That your decisions don't affect me like they do,
And baby what a shame for that,
Because I know just what you need,
And I, I probably could have helped with that,
And no one knows what the hell you're hiding,
I'm sure you're probably pretty lucky for that

It started out, I'm probably gonna need you,
Come on up you know I need to see you,
And even if you knew the way,
I tell you girl, you know I'd never leave you,
I tried to call but you were never around,
It felt like making love to voicemail,
Leave a note the next time you're in town,
But I know it's gonna end up in my trash can,

And even if we fall we could play it off together
We could be in perfect weather
And no one would know,
And only if you'd call you could see just one
Thing I could be that one to make you matter
And no one would know,

Well I'm turning around now,
The way I'm thinking about you,
That maybe you werent meant to see
That no one really ever gives a shit,
And now I'm writing you right now
And I, I'm sorry what I did to you,
And now we're all just staring at you now,
You probably think it's more than you deserve