Hero's Song

Brendan James

Here I am In the desert again A compass and a weapon A lost American

I started out with a simple plan And a locket in my hand But the sun is so unforgiving And the wind so hard to stand

Fall out, fall out With the rest of your brothers With the rest of your sisters Heroes on the line

Carry out what your leader says For what his leader says Is that his leader says This is right for the people

No one will ever understand what Thousands of beautiful healthy young statues must fall Smoke and explosions surround me A flood of hate, it drowns me I cannot live this way No I cannot live with Doubt and confusion They find me They run up right behind me I cannot die this way No, I cannot die this way

In the water, in the sand Is the blood of a culture Is the blood of an ancient people In whose holy war I stand

I hear the world like a cannon roar Say I can win this war I promise them this Isn't what I signed up for

No one will ever understand what Thousands of beautiful healthy young statues must fall Smoke and explosions surround me A flood of hate, it drowns me I cannot live this way No I cannot live With doubt and confusion They find me They run up right behind me I cannot die this way No, I cannot die this way

No one will ever understand what Thousands of beautiful healthy young soldiers must fall Smoke and explosions surround me A flood of hate, it drowns me I cannot live this way No I cannot live With doubt and confusion They find me They run up right behind me I cannot die this way No, I will not die this way
