

Song For The Prodigals

Brian Doerksen

My son, it's been a long, long time since we've been eye to eye, heart to heart I know you've tried so many things to fill the void in you, my son and I will not forget the promises I made when you were just a baby

I am your Father and you will always be My very own and here you will find Me, waiting for you
I am your Father

My daughter, I see the pain in your eyes Longing to be loved, longing to be free
I know your heart has been betrayed, innocence lost My daughter
Alone in your room, I see your tears falling again
So let Me hold you close, here in My arms you will find rest

I am your Father and you will always be My very own
and here you will find Me, waiting for you
I am your Father