Spent On Rainy Days

Bright Eyes

I wish I saved up for rainy days 'Cause they're the hardest to be dry I got no self control I'm always begging into telephones

I bought a little from my brother's friend Well, just to get me by, I don't trust his cut The effect is never as high as the mark up

I think I'll print it in the personals that I'm looking for a m atch Someone to light me up, someone to Burn the proof of the things that I've done

Each day there are hours I skip like a stone I just crawl in a bag I'm gonna live my life like somebody's shadow

I know, I'm lazy with the little things I mean I never held a door But I still loved you more than anyone since or before

You are always saying that I owe you one Well, let's consolidate this debt Get on a payment plan, I'll pay you compliments You can still treat me bad

But now it's easy, getting easier To leave you and this town behind I'll do some traveling

Once I'm gone, tell all our friends you got even I'm held like an object and then set aside And I'm back on the shelf, I'm locked in the drawer I'm mint in the box but you would still sell me for cost, would n't you?

I'll be anything, the cord of a parachute The blanket on top of you The window you are looking through The cord of a parachute
