The Angel and the Fool

Broken Bells

Leaning out the window watch the dying of the sun Balancing the weight of a pill on her tongue She'll be getting that look in her eyes Cold and lonely, but I don't know why

See her near the border at the end of the line She falls down, and I can't do enough But I won't ever let her give up The Angel and the Fool

Your're running out… keep running out

She found herself in a world full of men Watching them slowly destroy all her plans Cause all the love she won't allow Herself to even dream about Well both of us are older now, and it won't be long The early morning siren Is growing louder now Cause waking up is hard enough when there's no one else around

See her near the border at the end of the line She falls down, and I can't do enough But I won't ever let her give up The Angel and the Fool

Your're running out… keep running out