Babygirl

There's big pieces of a life she can't remember Her mind shuts down, it's trying to protect her Might be for the best to forget but it seems like They always reappear when she least expects Late nights we lay awake, drowning in the lake that pours out o f her face Here's late but she's still not safe Memories live out in the time, in the place The way he smelled, the way he smiled The evil she even recognized as a child Hand on her throat, sting of a fist Instead of her first kiss she got this Shameful feeling, painful secret Lonely knowin' that nobody would believe it Every wound that escapes her time capsule Hurts like the day it was born and it's brand new

I wasn't there babygirl but I'm here I don't know what to say I just hear If there's one wish I could make true I would shoulder that pain and take it off you Don't run babygirl, don't run You gotta' face what you fighting, head on Only one thing I could say in truth You gotta' deal with the demons before they deal with you
