Spring Song

Bruce Cockburn

When we come when we come again to celebrate renewal at the heart at the heart of us our eyes will touch Life though we may be hard to find, where we stand in time the mirrors of the past shine with the light of unborn days we wander in the flames with nothing but our names and no-one for the blame we love so well to focus on

When we come when we come again to search beside the Fool for the heart for the heart of us our eyes will touch Life

by ornaments entranced we trace in frenzied dance the patterns carved by chance on the pavement of memory seasons turning yet again the Mother's breast is full again as in heaven, so with men is now and ever shall be till we come

till we come again
to recognize renewal
at the heart
at the heart of us our eyes will touch Life