

Face The Day

callahan

Good morning sunshine
It's time to wake those tired blue eyes
And face the day
I throw my covers at the slamming of the screen door
My heart is racing as I spill onto the front porch
And she drives away
But the letters swear she'll find her way

I'll fall asleep waiting for you
'Cuz if I held my breath
It would be the last thing that I'd ever do
So I'll fall asleep waiting for you
Buried under blankets meant for two
'Till I wake up next to you

Two years under love in the making
All these plans and dreams we've had
Are taking shape
Another night, another show, after-party
Then we hit the road
Until one day we roll into your town
A familiar voice sings out

I'll fall asleep waiting for you
'Cuz if I hold my breath
It would be the last thing that I'd ever do
So I'll fall asleep waiting for you
Buried under blankets meant for two
'Till I wake up next to you

To you, to you, to you

Pray and pray but it won't get better
Drive all night but you can't outrun the weather
No-oh
You can try and try but it won't get better
You can stay the night, it won't last forever

I'll fall asleep waiting for you
'Cuz if I held my breath
It would be the last thing that I'd ever do
So I'll fall asleep waiting for you
Buried under blankets meant for two
'Till I wake up next to you

I'll fall asleep waiting for you
'Cuz if I held my breath
It would be the last thing that I'd ever do
So I'll fall asleep waiting for you
Buried under blankets meant for two
'Till I wake up next to you
