

My Black Angel

Cancerslug

She breaks through the darkness with everything that she as lost

Kisses me now, but don't know the cost

She will deny that she hurts the most

And will not care if you are anyone that thinks you are more than her

She will tear through your world and not give a fuck

She waits at the end of the world screaming "death was never free"

But I know that my black angel is waiting for me

She breaks through the darkness with everything that she hates

Kisses me now and don't hesitate

She will be more than you could ever take

Staring her pain in the face

And accepting it's grace

She will call it by name, while embracing it

She waits for the end of the world screaming "death was never free"

But I know my black angel is waiting for me