

She's A Flame

Canterbury

Waiting for the night to fall, She's a flame
Waiting for the spark to form over again
You called me when the night had fallen, you were under a bridge
You told me that you'd never call again
So I'm amazed you didn't search a little sooner, and all I really want is you back again

Where did you find me? Was I asleep?
I was having that dream everything fell at my feet
You were there, you fell the same like you always do

Scared about the thought of losing when I play the game
You make me out to be the lose over again
You called me out on how I was, a boy, away with no restraint
A trademark of the generation, that's burned down again
A search for sensation, a hope that we'll feel, feel again

Where did you find me? Was I asleep?
I was having that dream everything fell at my feet
You were there, you fell the same like you always do

Waiting for the night to fall. She's a flame waiting for the spark to form again

Where did you find me? Was I asleep?
I was having that dream everything fell at my feet
You were there, you fell the same like you always do.
