

Technophobia

Carnivore

You fear change and all that is new
Stand in the way of progress
Like primitive man afraid of fire
Till the explored it's many uses
The power of the atom at our disposal
Yet it called unsafe
Nuclear energy so clean and pure
Your ignorance is a disgrace
Do not resist
It is your destiny
Have we not all become
The children of technology
Holding fate in a magnetic grip
Of all your irrational fears
The shadow of machinery cast upon the flesh
Blood sweat and gears
The robots of dawn offsprings of industry
Stop you in the cobalt blue light
One fell swoop and you've become a memory
Away with your intrusive life
Into the reactor!
You worship a deadman hung with nails
Only a fool would die for the sins of humanity
On your knees before electronics
Let's replace this religious insanity
Tear down the churches instead of the towers
Build there the holy reactors
Give us the children science and math
In place of bibles and pastors
You bleeding heart liberals
Who oppose the nuclear regulatory commission
Must be compelled to retire
You serve only as obstacles and should be used
To fuel the nuclear pyre
