

You're the One Who Knows

Carole King

Waking up alone, I find my mind is reaching out to distant corners

Crystal mourners are drawing me to Babylon

Can you really stay yourself and flow with dedication

You're the one who knows and now you're gone

We got a feeling and I'm gonna try to keep it for a long time

It was a wrong time, though we had so much to travel on

Can you hold the love I gave in joyful consummation

You're the one who knows and now you're gone

Can you see my reflection in the facets of the prisms that you gave me

One day I am yellow

One day I am blue--can you save me

I'll be yours forever in the secret magic forest

That we dreamed about together

Can you see the color that I am today

I know I wanna stay in a good way

Waking up alone I find my mind is calling out

And I know you feel me

You know the real me is whatever color love takes on

Can you live with someone who's a mistress of illusion

You're the one who knows and now you're gone
