

Worth My Time

Carousel Kings

Yeah I've been watching you in my dreams
With the stalker's motivation
So peacefully give in to sleep like it's never been there before Blow past the friend zone for the touchdown
Honey I can't wait to score
So when I'm knocking at your door

It seems to me that there is this life I love (Gentlemen never win when nice guys finish last)
It seems to me that you're just not worth my time
Those great lies and bright eyes have held me at bay now for long enough
It seems to me that you're just not worth my time

Wake up in the morning
Know I will be long gone
Pawned off all your tricks and charms
For someone else's arms
And I know you're gonna miss me
And no I won't be there
Leave all these memories behind from the times we never shared

Don't expect the gentleman I pretend to be
With my quiet eyes and fake sincerity
I'll be loose lipped with a sinister smile
While my boys light up this block
These suits and ties are coming off for the last time
Faithful to the furnace, only burning what must be burned
