

Last Chance

Cartel

This is me calling you out for all these built up superstitions
They haunt me now and then
For just a little light down here
I would run, I would cross a thousand seas
And in our perfect world you would wait at the other side

I know that you, you'll follow up with all the answers
If you were there for me at all
This is the way that I can't describe anything I've felt for aw hile
It's just a little too much to take
This is the way that I can't describe anything I've felt for aw
hile
It's just a little too much to take

So tell me what would you have to say for asking who you really are Oh god, I want to know
Just a little truth down here
I would write, I would write a thousand songs and sing them all to you
You know you wouldn't have to say a thing

I know that you, you'll follow up with all the answers
This is the way that I can't describe anything I've felt for aw
hile
It's just a little too much to take
This is the way that I can't describe anything I've felt for aw
hile
It's just a little too much to take

So enough with everyone else's words
It's just a sign that nothing makes sense to me
This is your last chance
I'd cut you just to watch you bleed It's the only way to make you see that you are never there for me
You're never there for me
You're never there for me
Never there for me at all

I know that you, you'll follow up with all the answers
This is the way that I can't describe anything I've felt for aw
hile
It's just a little too much to take
This is the way that I can't describe anything I've felt for aw

hile

It's just a little too much to take
