Solomon Sang

Cassandra Wilson

He had silver and gold Riches untold And the beast of the field lay at his feet

Everybody bowed He wondered why or how It all came to be

No one understood his sorrow No one saw his pain He way praying for grace Ravens pray for rain

And when he stood before the altar Solomon sang Solomon sang

Wisdom was his calling Pride sent him falling Love was blissful misery

When the days grew dim Life begin again In the questions of the Queen

Did she understand his sorrow Did she see his pain Vanity and precious stones Weigh you down the same

But when he laid down with Mekeda Solomon sang Solomon sang

Love for woman Love for God Not so simple Not too hard For the spirit Pleasure is sweet And surrender set him free Free Set him free

When our time is ended How will we have spent it Did we see the beauty in each day

Was it God's devotion Behind each emotion Or did it all just slip away

Can you understand his sorrow Can you see his pain Nothing lives forever But the love that bears your name And when he stood up in the temple Solomon sang

Solomon sang Solomon sang
