Wall Street Crash

So, you're out on a limb but you're feeling so grand As the rulers of this country take you by the hand Cause you're safe in the knowledge you got somewhere to go But you're nerves gonna crack and it's starting to show Now the wife's gone and left you and the kids have left home Your job's in the balance and the mortgage has grown The car's repossessed so you're back on the bus Is it all happening, is it worth all the fuss? It's all as plain as could be If only you could see Take your face from the pillow and breathe Is this the life that you've wieved?
