

Edge Of Your Memory

Charlie Louvin

While sleeping on my shoulder your lips have softly spoke his name
And with those two arms around me you're still not close to me
Your morning smile reveals that he was with you in your dreams
Why must you let him keep on walking on the edge of your memory
I know you tried but he's still walking on the edge of your memory
Outside you change your image but inside you're still his girl
And to me the sunset means another long night filled with misery
Because I know I hear him walking on the edge of your memory

I know you tried...
