

Sundown

Charlie Simpson

Girl, I've seen your dreams and they were filled with darkness
Your eyes turn white in the bright lights
I know there's torment in your heart
Oh, and it's swimming around your body like a shark

Can you not see me anymore?
Or are you just hiding beneath the floor?
'Cause I can't feel empty anymore

Oh, just hide your heart anywhere
Please hide your heart anywhere from me
Ooh, 'cause I'm just not ready for
No, I'm just not ready for all this

I'll just throw a stone into the wishing well
Or walk down to the water's edge and push me into the swirl
As I walk down the stairs to face another day
I don't think I drank enough to make your faith go away

'Cause I have been waiting here from the start
Hoping the sunlight would rise through the dark
'Cause my heart is yearning for you, dear

Ooh, just hide your heart anywhere
Please hide your heart anywhere from me
Ooh, 'cause I'm just not ready for
No, I'm just not ready for all this

Oh, well the nights are so cold and I'm breathing you in Well, there's blood on the streets and it's darker than sin
I don't where I am going, I don't want to know anyway
I just need you here 'cause you are my sundown

You are my sundown, you are my sundown
You are mine
