Survive

Chelsea Wolfe

You said you won't break my heart unless you do you said you won't fall apart until the end did we travel all this way just to survive did you stay another day? We could survive all the sinners and the saints move in the same direction they walk in place until the end ramble on this barren place we call our home dreams of endless landscapes morphing, in love