

Lost And Found

Chemical Vocation

Stop and breathe it all in Save it for later
We have become so predictable
The search for redress is no longer needed

Maybe this reflects all our motions
We search for a reason to stay here
All there is, is nothing to see
And all we see is everything to loose

The weight of our responsibility
is laying on our shoulders
It echoes through the town
To end where whispers sleep

For how long will this hold
When will we be unified
(And seen as one)
These dramatic acts have been pushed too far and far too long

The weight of our responsibility
is laying on our shoulders
It echoes through the town
To end where whispers sleep

(The weight of our responsibility
is laying on our shoulders)

The weight of our responsibility
is laying on our shoulders
(Laying on our shoulders)
It echoes through the town
(Echoes through the town)
To end where whispers sleep
(End where whispers sleep)

The weight of our responsibility
(Maybe this reflects all our motions)
is laying on our shoulders
(Maybe this reflects all our motions)
It echoes through the town
(Maybe this reflects all our motions)
To end where whispers sleep
(Maybe this reflects all our motions)
