

Born To Sail Away

Chiara Civello

Only child of moon and sun
She learned to love the space between each one.
Lots of freedom, lots of room so she could bloom.

The braces taught her how to smile
She wasn't shy but laughing took a while.
All her teachers were surprised
She wanted first to fall and then to rise.

She was born to sail away...
She was born to sail away...

On a shore of crooked stripes
She wondered where all the stars had gone to Till she found them in his eyes, the perfect love she could grow in...in two.

But she was born to sail away...
She was born to sail away.

Wind blows and time flies by her
She knows she's goin' somewhere
Wind blows and time flies by her
She knows she's goin' somewhere...

But she was born to sail away...
She was born to sail away....
Born to sail away
She was born to sail away.
