Children 18:3

Oh, hide me, would you love Until all have gone? Horsemen riding, shouting, laughing To their hunting song

Somber words would feign contentment With eyes half drawn
But in my secret place the voices
Whispers on

Go ahead and show yourself
As you were born to do
Their fathers killed the prophets
Hallelujah, they're going to kill us too

Maidens sing at the harvest Children dance on the ground Angels join the gladness

The end will come here soon As broken men exalt in their own ruin

Stand by me, would you love? As if queen and pawn White or black both sides attack Until victory is won

But you must choose To win you lose And when sides are drawn From my secret place the voices push me on

Go ahead reveal yourself
As you were born to do
Their fathers killed the prophets
Hallelujah, they're going to kill us too

Maidens sing at the harvest Children dance on the ground Angels join the gladness

The end will come here soon As humble men rejoice in their own ruin

Stephen, Stephen, tell me Weren't you even scared?

Maidens sing at the harvest Children dance on the ground Angels join the gladness Listen to the most beautiful sound

Maidens sing at the harvest Children dance on the ground Angels join the gladness Listen to the most beautiful sound Maidens sing at the harvest Children dance on the ground Angels join the gladness Listen to the most beautiful sound

Maidens sing at the harvest Children dance on the ground Angels join the gladness Listen to the most beautiful sound

The end will come here soon
As broken men exalt in their own
The end will come here soon
As broken men rejoice in their own
