African And White

China Crisis

Africana, African and white You're closer than you really ever know And we all run the risk of To remain silent I don't know

We need your faith and hostility To be certain of a change And could you ever recover from Forever recover from this prejudice