Anymore

Chinchilla

With only one word They told me you were gone See the blood on my skin see The hole in my heart I have tried to reach out For a helping hand Hear the warning these nights One time again she's gone Can these feelings Be so wrong or right The end of love is far away When I wake up In the morning light I don't cry out your name anymore I spit on the mirror This ugly face I see Down in black abyss A morbid jealousy Perhaps in the future Begins a human race Without nuclear power For men to replace