

Disappearing One

Chris Cornell

What have you done, my little spark?
Cursing my name 'cause again I put you out
Falling apart, you tell yourself you are
Dreaming only of the ones who never dream of you

I'm your disappearing one
Vanish when the curtain's drawn
But I will come again, and you will let me in
And you'll see I never disappear for long

Into your room I stumble now
Too tired to cower and it's too late to draw you out
And there you lie like a painting of Christ
Bleeding on the HANDS of the ones who nailed you down

I'm your disappearing one
Vanish when the curtain's drawn
But I will come again
And you will let me in
And you'll see I never disappear for long